A Shamokin Constable Murdered and Thrown into a Creek.

John Graeff, constable of Coal Township, was murdered during last night and his body found in the creek near the Long Bridge, three miles east of this place, early Sunday morning by some people on the way to church. Whether he was slain for revenge or robbery is not yet known, but the preliminary inquire indicates that one of these theories is the correct one.

That the fatal ball sped from ambush is indicated by the fact that it entered behind the left jaw and made its exit between the eyes. Graeff must have dropped in his tracks without knowing what struck him, and his murderers than dragged the body to the creek and threw it in to make their work double sure. A jury has been empaneled by the Coroner, but no testimony has been taken yet, and there seems now to be but little hope of clearing up the mystery.

Three years ago Graeff had a warrant for the arrest of John Yocombonis, a Polander, charged with felony. In attempting to serve the document he met with violent resistance, and finally, in self-defence, was compelled to use his revolver. His aim was fatal and Yocombonis fell with a ball through his heart as he was rushing upon the officer, murderously brandishing a club. Graeff surrendered himself to the authorities and was promptly acquitted. These events are now recalled to establish the theory that his assassination may have been dictated by a vendetta Yocombonis' friends having at the time made threats.

The other theory, that the murder was prompted by robbery, proceeds on the ground that Graeff was agent and collector for an installment house, and at times, especially directly after pay day, was known to receive a large amount of money in that section of the country. The murdered man was about 40 years of age and highly esteemed, and his violent taking off has created intense excitement in the community.

A Comet Nearing the Earth.

Professor Lewis Boss, of the Dudley Observatory, finds from calculations made that the comet in Andromeda, discovered by Holmes of November 6, is very probably identical with Biela's periodic comet, which has not certainly been recognized since 1852. This confirms the suspicion telegraphed from Berlin by Professor Berberich some days ago.

Professor Boss thinks there is likely to be a very close approach between the comet and the earth on the morning of November 28, in case the supposed identity between the comets of Holmes and Beila proves to be a fact.

It is probable that the comet will rapidly grow in brightness and that within two weeks it will appear many times larger than the full moon. No really accurate calculations as to the nearness of approach between the comet and the earth on November 28 can be made until a much greater number of observations have been procured. The comet can now be seen in small telescopes.

Hicks' November Weather.

Rev. Ira Hicks' prophecies are that we will have bright, frosty days and nights of November. About the 4th it will grow warmer, and during the days following storms will pass from west to east. Be prepared for cold waves to succeed all the regular and reactionary periods of the month. The 11th is a central day for reactionary movements. From the 16th to the 19th look for rain, sleet and hard autumnal gales. Hard freezing will follow on the heels of the storms, and continue to the 22d and 23d. These dates will bring higher temperature and storm, and in turn be followed by cold. Month ends with storms, 28th and 29th and cold wave the 30th.

Shickshinny's Methodist Church Rededicated.

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Shickshinny was reopened last Sunday. The services were in charge of Rev. John Donahoe, presiding Elder. Rev. Richard Hinkle, of Berwick, preached the morning sermon. The church has been transformed into one of the most beautiful places of worship in Luzerne County. It has fifteen memorial windows one of them being in memory of Dr. John A. Gere, an uncle of President elect Cleveland. Rev. A. S. Bowman is pastor. The painting was done by W. F. Bodine.

The twenty-fifth annual re-union of the Philologian Society will be held at Normal Hall Thanksgiving evening, (Thursday Nov. 24).

ON THEIR TRACK.

A CLUE TO A MURDER COMMITTED SEVEN YEARS AGO.

A well known detective has secured important information, after long and patient research, which gives promise of leading to the discovery and capture of the devilish fiend who for a few paltry dollars, murdered two poor Italian musicians near Mt. Carmel about seven years ago, and then attempted to hide the crime by reducing their bodies to ashes.

The details of that dastardly crime, which was one of the most atrocious, barbarous, and inhuman deeds ever committed in the Anthracite coal fields, are still fresh in the public mind.

The two Italians arrived at Mt. Carmel early on the morning of July 4th, 1885, and while the air was filled with the rejoicing of patriotic America, paraded the streets one turning the crank of Italy's far famed music emanated; the other with cash box in hand going from door to door soliciting contributions from the many spectators who crowded the streets. All day long they persisted in their work and the sun had sunk in the west and the shades of night came as a silent messenger and told them that their day's work was done. They counted the contents of their miserable looking contribution box and stowed it away in a satchel which they carried with them for that purpose.

Intending to spend the following day at Centralia, after partaking of a light lunch at a local restaurant, they started on their journey to Columbia county's prosperous mining village. But the unfortunate fellows never reached their destination; a cold blooded assassin, divining their intentions, awaited their coming and for the sake of a few paltry dollars murdered them in cold blood.

It is not known whether the inhuman fiend, whose capture is expected in a few days, was aided in the consummation of the devilish purpose, and the manner in which he committed the deed will have to be ascertained when he is placed on trial for his crime. He succeeded in his purpose, however, took the life's blood of the two innocent victims, purloined the little money in their possession and then carried the bodies to a cave in the north of the Centralia road, at a point almost due west of the scene of the murder of coal operator Alexander W. Rae, away back in the early seventies.

To cover the traces of his crime he ignited the bush of the surrounding woods and hurriedly stole away, leaving the inanimate bodies to the mercy of the flames. A hunter was attracted to the spot, where the half-consumed bodies lay, by the smell of burning flesh, and, horrified by the sight, made all possible haste to Mt. Carmel and spread the alarm. Hundreds of people at once flocked to the scene, and though the ground was minutely examined, the woods scoured, and a vigorous search instituted, no trace of the murderer could be found. There is now hopes of his identity being revealed and justice meted out to him.

No judge, jury, or people, will have any compassion for the perpetrator of such a cold-blooded deed—Ashland Advocate.

Thanksgiving Day.

Governor Pattison has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

Profound gratitude to the Divine Author of all good, whose blessings have been so abundant in the past and whose benediction we fervently invoke for the future, make it fitting and right that the people should pause from their accustomed toil and pleasures to make acknowledgment of their dependence upon that Almighty Being from whom all blessings flow.

In conformity, therefore, with the recommendation of the President of the United States, I, Robert E. Pattison, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do appoint Thursday, the 24th day of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

On that day let the people lay aside all secular occupations and meet together in their usual places of worship, in reverent thanksgiving for mercies received and prayer for a continuance of Divine favor. By the reunion of families and friends promote that love for home which secures contentment and prosperity, and, above all, in kind remembrance of the poor, put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness, and so render our Thanksgiving more pleasing to the Lord."

RATIFICATION MEETING

A Democratic jollification will take place at Derr's store in Upper Greenwood on Saturday the 19th. to celebrate the recent victory. Senator Herring will make an address, and a pole will be raised at noon.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL LECTURE COURSE.

The first entertainment of the Normal School Lecture Course will be given by the Boston Stars on Saturday evening Nov. 26. Two members of this company are as well known in Europe as America. Mrs. Pond, formerly Miss Nella Brown has perhaps no equal among elecutionist, and Mr. Chas. Kellogg the whistler, or bird warbler as he has been called, is simply wonderful. On account of the peculiar formation of the roof of his mouth it is highly probable that no other person in the world can approach his unique performance. When you "listen to his mocking bird," you hear the real bird.

He gives the audience an opportunity to see that he uses no device or instrument in his whistling.

The second entertainment of the course will be a lecture by Dr. Thomas Dixon, Dec. 8, Dr. Dixon is said to be absolutely the greatest orator now on the platform. His subject is "Back bone".

The other three, Caton, Elliott and Beck are all excellent beyond anything we have had in previous courses. This is not a padded course, consisting of two or three good lectures with cheap talent sandwiched between. Eevery member is the best that could be had, and the entire course costs nearly two hundred dollars more than any previous course.

Tickets will be on sale at Brooke's in a few days.

Democratic Celebration At Danville.

On Monday evening the members of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Bloomsburg started from the Town Hall each member wearing a Black suit and silk hats and carried red and blue lanterns to take part in the Danville Jubilee, we saw the advanced guard consisting of our active workers in Bloomsburg, namely: Chairman Mercer, Senator Herring, Ex-Chairman Townsend together with Sec. C. B. Robbins, followed by Marshall A. DeSheppard. The Bloom Band following, about 75 members carrying lanterns, being then following by a number of other prominent Democrats As the boys marched down Main St., the band played splendidly, the martial strains ringing through the air aroused the citizens to assemble on the side walks and cheer the club on the road to the depot. A special train of five cars had been engaged and were quickly filled arriving in Danville, the club was met by a mounted delegation and Band to escort the Bloom boys up town. They were given the place of honor in the Parade. On marching down Mill street the Danville Democrats had provided a supply of Fireworks at the Club rooms and the streets were one blaze of red fire—fire-works of all varieties filled the air. While the Boys marched down cheer after cheer went ringing in the air, it was generally conceded that the Bloomsburg Delegation took the honors while the music supplied by the Bloom Band was very highly complimented by all who heard it.

The Boys arrived home a little after 12 o'clock all feeling pleased with the trip we noticed a number of our promient Democrats with the delegation, Hon Judge Ikeler, Judge Millard, District Attorney Chrisman, W. B. Taylor, W. H. Gilmore, Chas. Hassart, Chas. Ohl, W. G. Quick, L. Cohen, O. Alexander, Louis Lowenberg, P. Freeze, C. C. Trench, Wm. Kramer, John Casey, Treasurer Kline, A. J. Derr and many others. We understand the Club is intended to be a permenent organized.

Amusements,

BLOOMSBURG OPERA HOUSE NEXT WEEK

(Monday) evening, Nov. 21, the dancing ray of sunshine, Minnie Lester, supported by her talented company of dramatic artists. and superb band and orchestra, will commence a six-nights' (matinee Thursday, Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, at 2.15 p. m.,) engagement, opening with the beautiful and amusing play. "Silver Ledge," Matinee plays will be announced during the week. The band will make a parade daily and give a free open air concert every evening in front of the Opera House at 7:15.

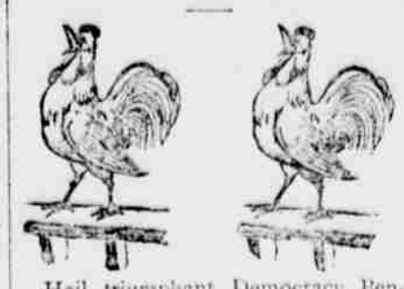
Miss Lester and company have been doing a splendid business wherever they have appeared, and the performance have given entire satisfaction. The plays presented are calculated to please the tastes of all—young and old, rich and poor, ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls. Miss Lester's singing and dancing have created quite a furore in the towns she has visited, the press being unanimous in their praise of this celebrated artists ability and versatility. The music rendered by the efficient orchestra is an important feature. The company has been playing in Reading, Pa., during the past week. The Times of that prosperous town says: Minnie Lester and her own company, band orchestra opened a week's engagement last night to a packed house, in the western comedy drama, "The Silver Ledge." This little lady is rightly named "The dancing ray of sunshine." Her song and dances won several recalls. Miss Lester can act, and that most cleverly. She is given excellent opportunities to display her claims and her talent. The character of Bess is that of a vivacious and generous girl, full of animation and diversity sufficient to call into play to their full extent the comedy and emotional powers of the actress. Miss Lester acquitted herself admirable in the part. She is supported by an evenly balanced company, which gave an interesting performance. One of the features of the evening was the orchestra connected with Miss Lester company, which rendered selections from the latest operas in a very acceptable manner.

Will Meet in Lock Haven.

The Synodical Society of the Northumberland Presbytery, which was in session at Bloomsburg recently, has accepted the invitation extended to them by the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church of Lock Haven to hold their next annual meeting there next November.

Prof C. H. Albert was one of the instructors at the teachers' Institute at Dauphin County this week.

EAST BENTON.



Hail triumphant Democracy. Benton, the banner township.

Congratulations to the Shickshinny Echo The Echo compared Cleveland's campaign to a game of base ball "three times and out." You're out, Mr. Echo—out of the Post Office. The good people did not "have their foot in", either, did they; eh?

The Echo seems to be about as much of "nuisance" to the community as he throught Cleveland was to the Country.

"Hit'em" again, Echo.

Congratulations to John G. McHenry, Committeeman of Benton township, well done.

A Salt River Boat factory was started at Bendertown of which J. M. Wenner is proprietor. He furnished J. W. Larned of that place with one, and Amos Hess of New Columbus and Mr. Bidleman of Cambra another, the boats were loaded with vegetables.

On Tuesday night the comedian, Cary, gave a free show at Benton, it was grand. The show was preparatory to the election returns. In representing his medicines, he declared that his worm medicine did not kill the worms, but only made them limber and sick, as the election news which was momentarily expected, would make the Republicans limber and sick. This announcement was greeted with immense applause. Yea, verily, and so it was.

On Tuesday night of election great excitement prevailed at Benton on receiving the news. As soon as the Tribune conceded New York New Jersey and Indiana, Democratic joy knew no bounds. The town was painted red in a few minutes. The whole country took up the strain, and echoed the shouts of Benton Democracy. The storm which looked so threatening, burst with disastiuos fury upon the Republicans.

Look out for great Democratic demonstrations in the upper townships for the next week or so. Several ox-roasts are in contemplation. We throught that there were a great many oxen roasted on election day.

Mr. Editor, there are a good many good feeling fellows up our way.

This campaign cured the Republican party of the grip.

MILLVILLE.

Ralph Kisner who has been successful in obtaining two Demorest medals one silver and one gold, started last Saturday for Philadelphia to compete for a grand gold medal. he was accompanied by Miss Allie J. Kester.

You can tell a democrat now as far as you can see him, he is all smiles.

The W. & W. are only running one train at present, the other engine is being repaired at C. M. Parks machine shop.

C. S. Ely the druggist is out with a petition getting signers with which he intends making application for the Millville Post Office.

L. M. German of Unityville expects to sell horse and cow, set of blacksmith tools etc, on Wednesday Nov. 30th, at his home.

Doctor Patton who has been confined to the house for several weeks with Sciatica Rheumatism is enough better so he walks out some.

Wm Masteller of Guava was in town last Monday.

A small boy in town who just started to school for the first this fall says that sometimes people call Pennsylvania, Uncle Tom, he meant they called the United State Uncle Sam.

Rev. Wm. Strickland of Rohrsburg preached his farewell sermon at this place last Sunday evening.

There is prospects of having a new church built here by the Lutherans next spring.

One of our townsmen thinks that from present indications that other parties will have to get out nomination papers if they dont look out.

There are several who expect to make application for the Post Office. As only one can get it some one will get left.

W. B. Lawton, Jr., wife and son spent last Tuesday in town.

J. W. Bogert employed at Shoemaker & Co. planing mill is on the sick list.

The one thing about the electric light which has been the cause of much study, is that of decreasing the light without turning it off entirely. This has been accomplished, and now the light can be reduced on the same principal as gas. A sixteen candle power light can readily be reduced down to a one candle power, which gives plenty of light for a night service.

A. J Derr, the ardent and uncompromising democrat of Greenwood township, was in town on Monday to make arrangements for a big democratic meeting in his township on Saturday next, 19th inst. A big delegation will go from Bloomsburg, and all the democrats in adjoining townships will be present. Speeches will be made, and a Cleveland and Stevenson pole will be raised, and a good old fashioned democratic jollification meeting. Everybody should go. The meeting will take place at noon, at Derr's store.

A number of our leading daily papers issued coupons in their papers during the late campaign, with which estimates, or guesses, could be made as to which candidate would receive the popular plurality, and how much it would be. One of the proprietors of the COLUMBIAN sent in a number of estimates among which was one that Cleveland would have 560,240 plurality. Has any one in this section made a closer estimate? The popular plurality has not yet been determined, but it will fall close to above figures.

A physician tells how worms find their way into chestnuts. He says when the nut is still green an insect comes along, and hunting a warm place in which to have its eggs hatched, lights upon the green chestnut and stings it. At the same sime it deposits some of its eggs in the opening thus made. The chestnut begins to ripen and at the same time the eggs are hatching. The insect selects chestnuts as a place for depositing its eggs as being the best adapted place by instinct. The floury matter in the nut turns to sugar, and sugar contains carbon which produces heat. You don't need to look for worms in the early part of the chestnut season, as it takes some time for the eggs to hatch.

In an address at Fowlersville, on Saturday evening proceding the election, J. K. Bittenbender made a prediction that the people had resolved to send President Harrison to farming, and he would raise the largest "beet" that had been raised since '72 and probably would surpass even that of Horace Greely's. The results show the predictions to be verified. The statement was based upon a knowledge of the false promises that have been made. The laborer was promised higher wages—the farmer better prices; but the promises all vanished while the expense of living has advanced and the mortgage upon the farms grown larger. The people have risen in their might and by the silent ballot overthrown the monopoly party. Abraham Lincoln truly said: "You may fool some of the people all the time, you may fool all the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time".

The entire mail rout system throughout the northern part of this county, except that carried by rail, is a completely bungled-up arrangement. We understand that a new route will soon be petitioned for to extend from Unityville, via Waller, to Benton. This is a move in the right direction; but, if possible, Derrs should be included in the route. It seems to us that a route from Unityville, by way of Waller and Derrs to Benton, leaving Unityville in the morning, arriving here at 10.20 o'clock, a. m., in time for mail south over tha B. & S. R. R., and returning after arrival of mail north at 3:35 p. m., would be the most feasible as well as the most convenient and satisfactory for all the points named. It would enable them to get their daily papers and give them much quicker communication with Benton and the County Seat. As it now is, all mail matter sent to these points from Benton or Bloomsburg must be carried in a round about way for nearly seventy-five miles, over three railroads and one wagon route before reaching its destination—and then sometimes it is detained a day or two on the way owing to having missed connection.—Benton Argus.

There will be no services in the Lutheran Church next Sunday except the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor both Jnuior and senior. Rev. Heilman preaches in Berwick where the Lutherans have recently organized.

Thanksgiving, 1892

THANKSGIVING.

Oh, give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good;
For his mercy endureth forever.
Enter his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise.
Be thankful unto him, and bless his holy name.
I will give thanks unto the Lord with my whole heart,
In the council of the upright and in the congregation.

Thou crownest the year with thy goodness,
And thy paths drop fatness.
I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving.
And will call upon the name of the Lord.
I will pay my vows unto the Lord;
Yea, in the presence of all his people; in the courts of the Lord's house;
In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem.

Thou shalt eat the labor of thy hands;
Happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee.
Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine in the innermost parts of thy house;
Thy children like olive plants about thy table.
Thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life;
Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children.

The eyes of all wait upon thee;
And thou givest them their meat in due season.
Thou openest thy hand;
And satisfiest the desire of every living thing.

Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem;
Praise thy God, O Zion.
For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates,
He hath blessed thy children within thee;
He maketh peace in thy borders;
He filleth thee with the finest of the wheat.

Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is wholy unto the Lord; neither be ye grieved, for the joy of the Lord is your strength.
Let the people praise thee, O Lord; let all the people praise thee.

TWO THANKSGIVINGS

"We must be early at church today, Aunt Charlotte," said Dorothy. "I have promised to play the organ, and I would not be late for anything."

"What a beautiful Thanksgiving day it is!" she continued, when she had left the table and put back the curtain from the window. "How fine the sleighing will be!"

As she spoke, a jingling of bells was heard without, and a sleigh glided rapidly across the white lawn.

"It is Bert Darricote, auntie," said Dorothy, looking out at the handsome young man, who sprang out of the sleigh at the steps.

"I have come to take you to church, Dorothy," called out Bert to her as she threw up the sash, letting in the crisp air, which blew her fair curls in sweet confusion about her fair, pretty face.

"I know you would not for worlds miss the opportunity to exhibit your skill at manipulating the ivories today," the young man continued, as he came and stood under the window and looked up into the bright face above him.

"I am so very glad you came, Bert," said Aunt Charlotte coming up behind Dorothy. "This child has been hurrying me all morning, and a housekeeper must needs look well to the ways of her household, particularly when her pastor and his wife are to take dinner with her."

"Just wait a moment, Bert," said Dorothy, "and I shall be ready. Do not keep auntie standing here talking to you, though. She is all impatience to explore the mysteries of cellar and closet to see if perchance she can discover some delicacy to tickle the palate of Brother Mallory today."

She looked very beautiful to the young man when she came down to him.

"Isn't the road fine, and isn't the air crisp, and doesn't Selim travel well today, Bert?" asked Dorothy loquaciously when they were seated in the sleigh and were skimming over the smooth, hard packed snow.

"What makes you so quiet, Bert?" she asked, astonished at the happy fellow's unwonted silence.

"Perhaps it is because I have so much to tell you, and I hardly know where to begin," answered Bert solemnly.

"Do you know, Dorothy, I am twenty-one years old tomorrow?"

"Twenty-one? Yes, you are, and I am eighteen. And yet—how short a time it seems since we were little children; since we used to go coasting down Dobson's hill. Do you remember the time, Bert, when Tom Arnold asked me to try the trip down on his sled and the thing came all to pieces and I went tumbling down and sprained my ankle? Oh, how serious you did get! Don't you know? You pummeled Tom's big head till you cut your gloves and your knuckles, too. I believe, for they looked very red when you were dragging me home."

"Do you remember all that?" said Bert. "I thought you must have forgotten it from the way you were smiling at Arnold the other night at choir practice."

"Why, Bert, how could he help the sled's coming to pieces?" asked Dorothy laughingly. "I see you are as unreasonable as ever."

"Well, it's a man's business to take care of a woman, even in little things, and when a fellow's even indirectly the cause of a girl's coming to grief in any way I think he deserves to be demolished," said Bert unreasonably. "But this is not what I wanted to say, Dorothy. As I told you, I am twenty-one now, and father has given me the junior partnership in the bank, and—and—you know how I love you—how I have always loved you, dear, and I want you to be my wife."

The young fellow wound up abruptly, hastily, looking lovingly into the sweet face beside him.

The sleigh sped smoothly on, the horses' feet resounding upon the bridge they were just crossing.

"Won't you speak to me, Dorothy?" Bert said, almost pleadingly. "You must know that I love you, and now I am able to take care of you, dear, if you will only trust yourself to me, no harm shall"——

Bump! The runners of the sleigh struck a board at the end of the bridge, there was a cracking, a creaking, the horse bounded forward and Bert and Dorothy tumbled over into the drift beyond the bridge.

"Are you hurt?" said Bert, scrambling to his feet, and extricating himself and Dorothy from the mass of rugs and soft snow.

"Not in the least," she replied, "but how are we to get to church? Who will play the organ?"

"Can I help you out of your difficulties?" called a cherry voice behind them, and big Tom Arnold came up in his handsome sleigh.

"Oh, Tom," said Dorothy, "I am so glad to see you! I must be in church in time to play the organ today, and see what has befallen us!"

"Well, get in, both of you," said Tom, arranging his rugs and holding out his hand to Dorothy. "Just fasten up Selim's traces, Bert, and hitch him behind. He will lead, won't he?"

"Thanks!" said Bert stiffly. "I can take care of myself; you had best not waste any more time, since Miss Daly must hurry."

Dorothy looked at him mutely from her seat in the sleigh; Arnold smiled beneath his fierce mustache, cracked his whip, and the horses sped forward, leaving Bert standing flushed and angry in the middle of the road.

It was a very silent, gloomy ride, after all, that Dorothy had. Tom saw her distress, and like the good fellow that he was said nothing to her. Her hands were trembling and her eyes were full of tears when he helped her out at church.

She struck the first few chords doubtfully, but when the voices pealed forth clear and sweet the organ tones grew firmer and fuller.

During the sermon Dorothy did not take her eyes off the door, but Bert never came. It was a very demure, a very sad hearted little maiden who went back home with Aunt Charlotte in the big old sleigh. When they reached the bridge, and she saw the overturned sleigh by the roadside; when she thought of Bert standing angry and alone, his sweet, earnest appeal to her still unanswered, her heart grew very heavy.

"But surely he will come," she kept saying to herself; but when the day was gone and she knelt down by her bedside, with the Thanksgiving hymns still ringing in her ears, there were tears in her eyes and sadness in her heart.

That was one Thanksgiving, and, oh, how sad a one!

There were dreary days of hoping, of waiting, of disappointment to Dorothy before another came. She had known Bert Darricote all her life, and it seemed to her she had always loved him. His bright, quick boyishness, his innate manliness, his very faults even were dear to her.

"If I could only see him," she said, as the weeks passed by and he came not; "no matter where I should meet him I would go up to him and give him his answer. I would tell him I loved him."

Women are not very reasonable creatures in matters pertaining to love. To her love means sacrifice, and her pleasure is to take the faults of the loved one upon herself.

If Dorothy saw Bert at all it was only occasionally and at a distance. The first time she saw him was at church, and he had only lifted his head coldly.

His heart was very heavy during the days and weeks and months after he parted from Dorothy with the words of love upon his lips, but he was young and foolish and proud, and had let a silly jealousy blind his eyes.

The season of heartache was good for both of the young things. It softened, it strengthed them. They both felt themselves growing—felt their feelings intensifying.

"How like to last Thanksgiving today is, Dorothy!" said Aunt Charlotte, as they took their seats in the sleigh.

"Please God it will not be so sad a one," said Dorothy to herself.

"Are you afraid to trust yourself in this old sleigh with me?" she continued to her aunt.

"Oh, no," said Aunt Charlotte. "It seems safe enough."

The tramping of the horses' feet kept time to Dorothy's thoughts. She glanced at the tall stump upon the hillock just before they reached the little river. Yes, it looked lonely, desolate, like a white robed ghost—just as it had looked a year ago when she and Bert had sped by.

The horses' hoofs beat a mournful strum strum upon the bridge, the sleigh glided rapidly down the last steep decline, the left runner struck a projecting snag, and before they had time to think Dorothy and Aunt Charlotte were struggling to extricate themselves from the overturned vehicle in the soft snow. A jingling of bells was heard behind them, and before Dorothy could realize it Bert Darricote was bending over her.

"Are you hurt, dear?" he asked very gently.

"Oh, Bert," she said joyfully, taking his hand and rising to her feet.

The young man looked a moment in silence upon the sweet, young face upturned to his.

"See where we are, Dorothy! Just here, a year ago today, I asked you to be my wife," he said. "Will you give me an answer now?"

"Yes, Bert," was all she answered, but it was enough for him.—Patience Oriel.

Remember the Day.

The feast at last. The grace is said,
And up bobs every eager head,
And bright eyes, like some greedy power,
Go seeking what they may devour.

The turkey at the feast is lost:
The chickens get their drumsticks crossed,
And empty plates, just filled with pies,
The good wife marks with smiling eyes.

Perhaps this day in years to come
May find them wanderers far from home,
And with joy hunting memories cheer
The shadows of that changeful year.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Day of Memories and Hopes.

At the recurrence of the home anniversary we pause, take up the scattered threads and weave them into a golden tissue of memory. Today we may think over the past—today indulge, if we wish, in roseate anticipations for the future. The home anniversary lays upon us its gently arresting hand, and our hearts are full.

GAMES FOR THANKSGIVING.

Amusement for the Young Folks Should Close the Festal Day.

The short November day all too soon has departed and night has "spread her dark mantle o'er the scene." The older folks are quiet and thoughtful, conversing in low tones or indulging in tender memories of past Thanksgivings called up by the day's festivities. But as the lamps are lighted the young people are full of mirth and gayety and eager for an evening's amusement. You all have tried pinning on the donkey's tail. A game very like it and appropriate for the day is called the "Headless Turkey."

A figure of a large turkey, minus a head, is drawn in charcoal or cut from dark colored cambric and fastened on a sheet, which is tightly stretched against a wall. To each member of the company is given a pin and a turkey's head cut out of cambric, which, if rightly placed, will fit the turkey's neck. Then, one at a time, the players are blindfolded and placed at the end of the room opposite the sheet. After turning them around three times one way and then three times the other they are started off that they may search for the turkey and pin the head where they suppose it belongs. He must pin it to the spot where he first touches. To the person who comes nearest placing the head in its proper position a prize is given, and to the one who makes the least successful effort is presented a turkey feather, which he must wear the rest of the evening.

Impromptu tableaux are also suggested as pleasant Thanksgiving diversions, and to these you may call in the older members of the family if you like, though I know families where the parents and grown up sisters engage in the children's plays very often and add greatly to their pleasure. When two rooms are connected by folding doors a whole room may be used as a stage, and no curtains are needed, as the doors answer very well in their place. When there are no double doors one end of a room may be curtained off with sheets or any kind of drapery hung from a rope stretched from the sides of opposite doors or windows. Pumpkin lanterns set in a row along the floor make a funny substitute for footlights, and will decorate the stage appropriately, besides being perfectly safe. I wonder if you know how to make a pumpkin lantern. Cut a hole in one side large enough to pass a candle on a small candlestick through. Remove the seed, etc., from the inside; scrape the other side very thin, so the light will shine through; light your candle, put it in, and you have a pumpkin lantern. The open side must of course be next the stage, else the light will shine out from instead of onto the stage.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Give Thanks.

What a world it is in which, when the great festival of Thanksgiving comes on its yearly round, there is always something to be found to be thankful for, even, it would seem, in the case of the most wretched!

Are we poor? We might be beggars. Are we beggars? We might be lepers. Are we lepers? Our sickness might be unto death. Is it unto death? We have yet a heaven beyond. For all let us give thanks. Thanks surely if we are in health of body and mind; and even in illness there is much reason and occasion to be found for a grateful heart. Has trouble come to us now? It might be worse. Are we alone? There is poorer company than ourselves to be had. Have we lost our dearest and best? They, at any rate, are not here to suffer. Has the year dealt crushing blows in business? It has not taken away also our power and will to work. Have we work? Then for that and all the rest give thanks again. Give thanks that we live and breathe and have our being in this world of wonder and light and beauty. For, poor and sick and sad though we may be, though

Other hands may grasp the field and forest,
Proud proprietors in pomp may shine,
But with fervent love if thou adorest,
Thou art wealthier—all the world is thine!
—Harper's Bazar.

The Mercies of the Lord.

The recurring season never fails to find the same repeated mercies. We thank God this year for the same blessings as claimed our praise on last Thanksgiving day. Again and again it is recounted in that book of the Bible which is all psalms of praise how unfailing and repeated is the goodness of God. "The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting." "Thy mercy, O Lord, endureth forever."

Let this, then, be a day of gladness for all our people, whatever their condition, race or religion. Let rich and poor together praise God today. Let Protestants and Catholics lift up the voice of simultaneous thanksgiving. Let this be a national holiday of praise to God, and a day when each shall add to the other's joy by gifts and aid and fellowship of praise.—New York Independent.

Thanksgiving Joys.

Thanksgiving day is almost gone,
And peace reigns overhead;
And mother's joy—her own sweet boy—
Is trundled off to bed.

Yet what are those unearthly sounds
That pierce the midnight air?
And what's that throbbing noise we hear
Come rumbling down the stair?

It is our little household pet,
Who tosses upon high,
And wages an unequal fight
With turkey and mince pie. —Life.

Blessings on the Day.

Oh, blessings on the holiday!
The subject of my rhyme;
Oft in life's stormy sea it stands
A beacon for all time.
And many a homestead in our land
Uprising fair and gay,
Dates all its hopes and all its joys
From dear Thanksgiving day!
—R. W. Hume in New York Telegram.

HISTORIC FEASTS.

EARLY THANKSGIVINGS AND THE EVENTS WHICH LED TO THEM.

The Pilgrims First to Celebrate the Festival in America with Massasoit as Their Guest—A Curious Long Island Custom.

We wonder how many boys and girls know the facts which we shall tell them about this holiday. How many, for instance, can tell in what year the day was first observed? To recall the circumstances of the first day of Thanksgiving may serve to remind us of how much more we have to be thankful for than had those early pilgrims. History tells us that of the 102 emigrants that landed on the bleak and rocky coast of Cape Cod bay in the winter of 1620 almost half died before the following winter fairly set in. Today in our comfortable country and city homes we cannot even imagine the sufferings of the survivors, both from destitution and the inclement weather, which they were not prepared either as to clothes or habitations to brave. The most of the brave people were not inured to hardships. Among them were gentle and delicately nurtured men and women.

They staked and laid out two rows of huts for the nineteen families that comprised the colony, but within the first year they had to make seven times more graves for the dead than houses for the living. Notwithstanding all their trials and hardships these brave founders of a great and glorious race had so much for which to be thankful that they had to appoint "an especial day on which to give especial thanks for all their mercies."

So they agreed among themselves that, since their prudence and forethought had been so wonderfully blessed of God, they would send out four men hunting that they might rejoice together in a special manner after the fruit of their labors had been gathered. According to the historian, barley and Indian corn were their only crops; the "peas were not worth gathering, for, as we feared, they were too late sown." This was under the good Governor Bradford. The four men who went hunting brought in as much game as served the company for a week. The recreations of the day consisted of the exercises of their arms—Massasoit, the Indian chief, and ninety of his men coming among them for three days, during which time they were entertained and feasted by the colonists, the Indians killing and bringing to the feast five deer. This was in 1621 and was the beginning of Thanksgiving day in America.

The next New England Thanksgiving day was in July, 1623, which had been appointed a day of fasting and prayer on account of drought. While the people were praying rain fell abundantly and the governor appointed it instead a day of thanksgiving. In June, 1632, Governor Winthrop, of the Massachusetts Bay colony, invited the governor of Plymouth colony to unite with him in a day of public thanksgiving because the action of the British privy council had been favorable to the colonies. In Massachusetts Bay colony old records show that days of thanksgiving were appointed in 1633, 1634, 1637, 1638 and 1639 and sometimes on more than one day in the same year. In Plymouth we find mention of one in 1631 and again in 1668. In 1650 it seems to have become an annual custom.

During the revolution it was annually recommended by congress; then there was a thanksgiving for peace in 1784, and in 1789 President Washington recommended a day of thanksgiving for the adoption of the constitution. In 1795 there was one for the suppression of insurrection, and in April, 1815, the president appointed a day of thanksgiving for peace. In New England, during all this time, however, annual proclamations were issued by the governors of the various states officially recommending the religious observance of the day, where indeed it became the principal social and home festival of the year.

During the war of the rebellion President Lincoln appointed special thanksgiving in 1862 and 1863, and a national proclamation of annual thanksgiving was issued in 1863 and 1864. Since that time the president, as well as governors and mayors, have issued such a proclamation annually.

One of the most remarkable thanksgivings on record was the custom in Southampton and Easthampton, Long Island. Montauk Point, consisting of about 9,000 acres, was owned by numerous proprietors in those two towns. They used it as a common pasturage for their stock. The time for driving the flocks home for the winter was fixed at a meeting by the town council, "and it came," says the historian, "to be a rule from the period beyond which the memory of man runneth not that the Thursday of the week following the return of the cattle from Montauk should be observed as a day of thanksgiving."

But thanksgiving is older even than the United States. In many countries there have been from time to time thankful hearts. In Holland the first anniversary of the deliverance of the city of Leyden from the siege, Oct. 3, 1575, was kept as a religious festival of thanksgiving and praise. In the English church service the 5th of November is so celebrated in commemoration of the gunpowder plot.

We think we have told you as much as you can remember about what other people had to be thankful for and when, and if you will master some of these dates you will probably be better informed about the day, which to you means perhaps only a great feast, than will some of the older folks, who, we are sure, will be very proud and pleased to hear what you have learned.—American Agriculturist.

A THANKSGIVING HUNT.

How the Mighty Nimrods Fared—Dinner in the Forest.

In a broad and general way hunting parties may be divided into two great classes—those that people hear about and those they do not.

The writer has in mind a hunting party of the second class—that which appears not on the written page, nor is found in the mouths of men. It went for big game, and got but little of it. It went out with plenty of wagon room in which to bring back venison, deer and antelope to tickle the stay at homes' palates, and returned, the wagon space still unoccupied and carrying no load but that of solid, soggy, destroyed hopes. Yet the party was successful—in a way.

There were days—a week of days—that the party walked or rode over the hill and plain without getting a shot at anything. The members became distrustful of each other and cast glances that plainly asked, "Who is the Jonah of this trip?" For they were hunters by instinct and training—not of little feathered birds, but of game that it takes brains as well as powder and lead to reach. They knew the haunts of the game that they wanted—deer and antelope—but they were perpetually to windward, and game fled the country before them. After a week of disappointment, of muscles aching with unrewarded toil, of a steady bread and bacon diet opposing a rising appetite, desperation took the upper hand.

"I'm getting pretty sick of bacon," said one.

"It looks like that is all we'll get," said another.

It was at this juncture that the party happened on a small bunch of wild cattle. It was the first meat on the hoof with which their eyes had been blessed. It was an exciting moment, and the leader of the party rapturously brought his rifle to his shoulder and shot down a yearling heifer.

"A deer at last! Look at the antlers!" he yelled, capering gleefully about.

"You are mistaken; it's a cow," said a more conservative member.

The leader looked doubtfully at his prize and shook his head. "I admit that appearances are against me," said he. "But—so excited—hadn't shot a gun for so long—sick of bacon—no, no; you're mistaken. It is deer meat."

So this lawless, reckless party took a hind quarter and journeyed on. The next day a deer was actually seen and killed. Hope revived, and the party estimated the probable result of the trip, with a large balance on the credit side.

The third day from the opening of the season the route led through a beautiful oak country. Underbrush there was in plenty, and the enthusiastic leader of the party looked wisely about as he observed to another, "Should think we ought to run across some mast hogs in here."

Strangely enough, at that moment a sedate old black and white sow hove in sight, with her progeny trailing at her heels. With a porker's usual disregard of consequences she was moving straight against the face of providence. The leader's gun was ready, and in a moment the choicest of the litter was a victim of maternal imprudence. The mother galloped away with no apparent regret, and the brothers and sisters of the deceased went galloping after.

That night—Thanksgiving eve—the party camped in a sheltered canyon. There was a spring of clear water in which water cresses grew. There was grass in plenty for the mules. There was wood for a roaring campfire. Who so happy, so well contented, as the hunters as they sat about the blaze, pulling contentedly at their pipes and thinking of the grand and varied feast they would have on the morrow? There were bacon, pork, beef and venison; there were onions, potatoes and canned tomatoes, flour, salt, pepper, baking powder. The next day these should be combined in the most appetizing form. A stew with dumplings! The choicest of meats, roast or boiled!

In their mind's eye they beheld themselves fattening upon the good things that their rifles had procured or their forethought had provided.

Twenty-four hours later this was an accomplished fact. There was nothing left to eat. But the fire burned gayly and the pipes smoked as pipes should. Complacency and lethargy possessed the party.

"I don't feel as though I'd ever move again," said the recumbent leader.

"Mebbe it's just as well if you don't," said a strange voice, and the strange owner of it stepped out into the firelight. He had a mean looking gun in his hands, and the muzzle pointed groupward.

"I just brought a few friends along to help you keep Thanksgiving," he continued, and under the spell of his words—or gun—the party remained statuesquely motionless.

"I kinder thought you would like to pay for that shote of mine you killed yesterday?" he inquired.

"And at the same time I'll collect for that heifer," said another stranger, advancing from the opposite direction. The party fancied itself surrounded.

Then the conservative member spoke. "Yes, certainly, gentlemen; name your price. We shall be glad to pay it."

"That saves us all a heap of trouble," remarked the visitors with peculiar emphasis as they took what money they wanted and rode away with it. They left behind nothing but a spirit of unrest—a longing to quit the country—strangely at variance with the peaceful content of a few minutes before. It was voiced by the leader, that eccentric genius who had slain both heifer and shote.

"Boys," said he, "let's go home. Let's start tomorrow. This hunters' life is too exciting; there's heart disease in my family. Let's go home and calm down."

So the next day the party started homeward.—New York Times.

Without Variations.

A MUSICAL CAT THAT SINGS SEVERAL WELL-KNOWN SONGS.

From the Washington Post.

There is a young lady on Capital Hill who has a musical cat. After nearly a year of hard work on the feline musician, she says it can sing the best portion of two well-known songs, "Home, Sweet Home" and "Auld Lang Syne," but without the usual variations. When this young lady wants pussy to sing she puts her on a velvet footstool and commands: "Puss sing 'Home, Sweet Home,'" at the same time humming the air. Pussy always responds, singing the desired tune in a rather high falsetto voice, a little broken, but sufficiently well to be recognized by the hearers. Sometimes when this cat is out on a moonlight expedition her voice can be heard above those of her companions in the feline-out-door-back-fence concert, ringing out "Auld Lang Syne" or "Home, Sweet Home." The young lady does not want her name mentioned, for fear she will be besieged by freak collectors or dime museum proprietors, who want to buy, beg, borrow or steal her musical pet.

A TREASURED COAT.

IT WAS SLASHED BY WILKES BOOTH WHILE RUNNING AWAY.

The Coat Was Worn by the Leader of the Orchestra the Night Lincoln Was Assassinated—A New Story About an Historic Tragedy.

William Withers, Jr., is the quiet man who leads the orchestra at the California theater, and when not marshaling his musicians is writing music in his room at the Brooklyn hotel. He is so retiring that few can claim to know him well, although his musical genius has for thirty-five years given him standing among the composers and leaders of the country.

Mr. Withers is fifty-five years old now, yet looks to be not more than forty, and would appear even younger except for an episode that occurred on the evening of April 14, 1865, at Ford's theater in Washington. That evening Withers almost had the unpleasant distinction of being murdered by Wilkes Booth after the latter had fired the fatal shot at President Lincoln and was rushing madly from the stage to an entrance where a confederate had a horse in waiting.

Mr. Withers' most valued treasure is a dress coat, now in part destroyed by the moth that corrupts all wool, but on the back of the coat can be plainly seen two clean cut slits, made with a sharp edge. One, high up, as though a stroke for the wearer's neck, had missed it by a little and descended upon the garment. The other cut, nearly over the center of the space under which the wearer's right shoulder blade would be, is longer but equally well defined, and made with the same sharp steel.

Wilkes Booth made both these slits, and the wonder is that his victim was not fatally slashed, instead of being only nicked through the upper cut.

The coat was new when Mr. Withers put it on to lead the orchestra on the occasion of Abraham Lincoln's visit to the play, but the coat has never been worn since, so great was the sentimental devotion of the musician to the great man who won for friends all who came to know him.

Every one knows the story of Lincoln's assassination while sitting in an upper box of Ford's theater enjoying "Our American Cousin," but few have learned what occurred just after Booth had fired the cowardly shot, because William Withers is the only man who can tell the story, and he does not often do it.

"When the fatal shot was fired," he says, "I thought some property man had fired a pistol. Just then I heard a heavy fall on the stage and the people began to yell: 'Hang him!' 'Lynch him!' 'Stop him!' and I saw a man running across the stage toward me. When he got near I saw his eyes were almost starting from his head and there was the most fearful expression on his face I ever saw.

"I recognized Wilkes Booth and at that instant he put down his head and came rushing on, saying: 'Let me pass! let me pass!'

"I was standing where I could not move much, the passage was so narrow. He came on and when he got near struck me with a bowie knife and kept saying. 'Let me pass!' I felt the cut and turned a little. Then he struck the knife into me again near the back of my neck and I fell. When I was down he rushed to the stage door, grasped the knob with both hands and dragged the door open. I saw 'Peanut' John standing outside holding a bay horse. Then Booth pulled the door shut.

"Very soon Detective Stewart ran over me and out of the door after Booth. The crowd came upon the stage and grabbed me and wanted to hang me right there, but some who knew me shouted that I was not the man. I was arrested, however, and taken to jail, when Mayor Wallack examined me.

"I thought I was severely cut, but when I took off my clothes I found that the knife had only pierced my clothing and cut the skin a little. The cuts were as clean as though a razor had made them, and I have never understood how I escaped. The knife was found in front of the patent office, where Booth had dropped it as he rode away after the murder.

"I had seen Booth before the show standing near the Tenth street entrance to the theater, and after the performance began saw him again standing against the rear wall of the parquet circle, and then noted that he had gone into the balcony. After President Lincoln came in Booth stole down the balcony until he could look through a hole that had been bored in the box door and locate the president exactly. Then he had opened the door a little, taken careful aim and fired the fatal shot. He burst through the box and jumped fourteen feet to the stage.

"It was such an experience as I never wish to have again. It made me sick for weeks, and I get excited now when I think of it. I taught little 'Tad' Lincoln to play the drum, and was always kindly treated by the president. The whole shooting and escape were done in a few seconds and unexpectedly. Booth had evidently made his plan carefully, and was prepared to resort to any means to avoid arrest. I keep that old coat now, and value it more than everything else I have."—San Francisco Examiner.

Satisfied with a Monarchy.

A schoolmaster was so enthusiastic over politics that he began to give lessons on them to his class. He did not get on very well at first, but at length the scholars began to have a tolerable idea of the subject.

"Now, Johnnie," the schoolmaster asked in the course of one lecture, "would you rather have a republic or the present form of government?"

"The present form of government," replied Johnnie.

"Why would you rather have the present form of government?"

"Because I shouldn't get a holiday on the queen's birthday if it was a republic."—London Tit-Bits.

Cleveland's Cabinet.

SPECULATION CONCERNING THE MEN WHO WILL COMPOSE IT.

The New York Evening World says: In regard to Cabinet selections by Mr. Cleveland the politicians are all at sea. There is a large variety of men to select from for Cabinet timber. States that have hirherto been Republican have at this election been carried by the Democrats, and there will, no doubt, be claims for recognition from the leaders in these newly-acquired Democratic States. The Cabinet slate generally figured out by politicians around head-quarters and the halls this morning was as follows:

Secretary of State—Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware.

Secretary of the Treasury—John L. Mitchell or Ex-Postmaster General William F. Vilas, of Wisconsin.

Secretary of the Navy—Willian C. Whitney, of New York.

Secretary of War—W. B. Franklin, of New Hampshire.

Secretary of the Interior—Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana.

Secretary of Agriculture—Governor Boies, of Iowa.

Attorney General—Congressman William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, or Congressman Culbertson, of Texas.

Postmaster General—William F. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, or Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan.

The impression prevails that Governor Russell, of Massachusetts, may be selected for the mission to England.

George T. Parker, who has been Auditor for the Democratic national committee, it is reported will be Mr. Cleveland's private secretary at the White House.

Illinois is not accorded a place in the above list, because the Vice President comes from that State.

It has been the generally accepted belief in political circles that Ex Secretary Whitney, who has done so much to achieve the sweeping victory for Cleveland, would be offered the place of Secretary of State by the President-elect, but those who appear to know something about it say that Mr. Whitney would prefer to be Secretary of the Navy if he enters the Cabinet at all. When he was Secretary of the Navy he planned and began rebuilding the Navy, and it is said that he desires to be at the head of the navy again in order to finish his uncompleted work.

Mr. Reid Philosophical.

THE DEFEATED CANDIDATE'S VIEWS OF REPUBLICAN REVERSE.

Whitelaw Reid, the defeated Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency, has been stating his views of the result of the election.

He says that the Democratic tidal wave which has swept the country gives him more disappointment and concern than his own personal defeat. He takes it as an indication that a large portion of the Republican party is dissatisfied with McKinley tariff legislation, and yet, he says, he is glad the Democrats have made a clean sweep, for all responsibility for a change in policy will now be put where it belongs.

As for his own reverses, he says he feels like the boy who stubbed his toe—he was too old to cry, and it hurt too much to laugh.

Mr. Reid declares that he has had enough of public life, and does not intend to enter it again.

Cleveland's Inauguration to Go Ahead of All Previous Ceremonies.

Already preparations are under way for the inauguration of Mr Cleveland March 4 next.

It is the intention of Democratic organizations in the larger cities to make it more notable than any similar event that has preceded it.

Tammany Hall, of New York, the Harrity Club, of Philadelphia' Iroquois Club of Chicago, and other similar organizations have sent representatives to Washington to secure accommodations for their members who will be present and participate in the event.

Estimates are heard placing the number of marchers in the procession to celebrate the return of the Democratic party to power at 50,000.

Success in everything depends largely upon good health. De Witt's Little Early Riser are little health producing pills. See the point? Then take an "Early Riser." W. S. Rishton, Druggist. 10-14-1y

A Notable Banquet.

MR. CLEVELAND MEETS THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AT DELMONICO'S.

New York, November 15. The one hundred and twenty-fourth annual banquet of the New York Chamber of Commerce was held at Delmonico's to-night. The fact that President-elect Grover Cleveland was to be the guest of honor kept the attendance of financiers and statesmen up to the usual figure in spite of the execrable weather.

Delmonico's large hall never looked better. There were flowers and flags in profusion, and the orchestra was completely hidden behind a big screen of exotics. The capacity of the hall is about 250, and about that number of tickets were issued, with the usual result that nearly half of the applicants were left out in the cold. Even such distinguished men as Senator Carlisle and Ex Governor Campbell, who arrived in the city unexpectedly, might not have been adequately provided for if Secretary Elkins and Baron de Fava had not sent regrets at the very last minute.

NOTED MEN PRESENT.

Charles E. Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is in Europe on his wedding tour, so Vice President Alexander E. Orr presided. On his right sat Secretary Charles Foster, Secretary W. H. H. Miller, W. C. P Breckenridge, Rev. Dr. John Hall, Whitelaw Reid, Chauncay M. Depew, Samuel D. Babcock, Calvin S. Brice, Carl Schurz and A. B. Hepburn, Comptroller of the Currency. On his left were President-elect Cleveland, John G. Carlisle, Ex-Governor James E. Campbell, of Ohio; the Rev. W. H. Vibbert, Murat Halstead, President J. G. Schurman, of Cornell University, David M. Stone and Horace White.

After justice had been done to the menu Mr. Orr briefly recited a few of the things for which the nation ought to give thanks next week, and then introduced the principal speaker of the evening.

Mr. Cleveland was received with enthusiastic cheers, Republicans vieing with Democrats in an endeavor to honor the next Chief Magistrate of the United States.

After the applause which greeted his rising had subsided Mr. Cleveland said: "Mr. President and gentlemen. I am exceedingly gratified by the kindness and warmth of your greeting. It does not surprise me, however, for I have seen and felt on more than one occasion the cordial hospitality and heartiness of those who assemble at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Congress.

"We all have noticed that many men when they seek to appear especially wide and impressive, speak of our business interests as something awful and mysterious; and quite often when a proposition is under discussion, its merits are no longer apparent to those whose hair is on end at the solemn suggestion that 'our business interests" are lying in wait with numerous vials of wrath in complete readiness for those who arrive at an unaccepted conclusion.

"I am fortunate in being able to state that my relation to the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, though merely of a complimentary kind, arising from honorary membership, has so familiarized me with 'business interests' that I no longer regard those words as meaning a bloodthirsty beast, nor do I have constantly before my mind those children in the biblical story who were torn in pieces by bears for discussing too much at random the baldness of an ancient prophet.

"It is entirely natural that my familiarity with business, arising from the relation to which I have referred, should be of a very pleasant sort and free from fear and trepidation, for the only meetings I have ever attended of the Chamber of Commerce has been precisely such as this, when the very best things to eat and drink have been exhaustively discussed. I am bound to say that on these occasions the dreadful beings representing business interests have been very human indeed.

"I know you will not do me the great injustice of supposing that I in the least underrate the importance of the commercial and financial interests here represented. On the contrary, no one appreciates more fully than I that, while a proper adjustment of all interests should be maintained, you represent those which are utterly indispensable to our national growth and prosperity. I do not believe that any other interests should be that tables should be robbed of the good things which are honestly and fairly there, merely because some other tables are not well provided for.

"It comes to this: We are all interested as Americans in a common pursuit. Our purpose is or ought to be, in our several spheres, to add to the general fund of national prosperity. From this fund we are all entitled to draw, perhaps not equally, but justly, each receiving a fair portion of individual prosperity. Let us avoid trampling on each other in our anxiety to be first in the distribution of shares, and let us not attempt to appropriate the share of others.

"As I close I cannot refrain from expressing my thanks for the courtesies often extended to me by the organization at whose hospitable board I have sat this evening. I beg to assure you that, though I may not soon see you again on an occasion like this, I shall remember with peculiar pleasure the friends made among your membership, and shall never allow myself to be heedless of the affairs you so worthily hold in your keeping."

Dr. Depew during the evening gratefully congratulated the President-elect, instead of offering him that promised ante-election consolation.

The Popular Vote.

CLEVELAND AND STEVENSON HAVE 589,000 MAJORITY OVER HARRISON AND WEAVER.

An estimate of majorities in the forty four States, taken from returns on the general result, give Cleveland 796,000 in twenty-four States, counting Ohio. Harrison 172,500 in fourteen States and Weaver 21,500 in six States. Cleveland has 623,500 majority over Harrison, and 589,000 over Harrison and Weaver on the popular vote. Not enough is known on Bidwell's and Wing's vote to give an estimate. In 1884 Mr. Cleveland had a plurality of 62,683, and in 1888 it was 98,017. The Republicans Have Lost all Their Great Leaders.

The effects of election on the rank and file of the Administration's adherents may conceived by picturing in fancy a tract of country over which a cyclone has swept.

There is a deadly calm in the various departments. The clerks not subjected to civil service rules look at one another without saying much and already are weighing the chances of how long they will remain in their places. The heads of departments can tell to a dot almost how long they will occupy their leased houses and rooms.

Aside from the perturbation which naturally affects the office-holders, the very few prominent Republicans in town are discussing who will be the party leader hereafter. The seriousness of this question becomes apparent when you hear the subject broached. The almost entire absence of a lucid answer is almost impressive.

Every Republican who understands the existing situation knows very well that William McKinley is out of the swim. His chances for leadership, shaken by his treachery at Minneapolis, were destroyed in the uprising of the people against his tariff measure.

Tom Reed is likewise hors de combat by reason of his record in the House.

Senator Aldrich is as deeply in the ultra tariff mire as McKinley.

Secretary Foster is acknowledged to be too indiscreet.

Gen. Ben. Tracy has not, if disposed to figure in the field, the qualification of leadership.

The only names seriously mentioned are those of Jerry Rusk and Senator Allison. The latter, it is conceded, is qualified in all respects, save his constitutional timidity. He is a moderate protectionist, and if he had been a man of greater courage he would have revolted against the extremities of the McKinley legislation. Senator Allison is a diplomat in dealing with men and has just carried his State of Iowa. The location of Allison's home is favorable, and he is a man who enjoys the confidence of the agriculturists to high degree. So says those who are mentioning his name to day as the Moses who is to lead the Republicans out of the wilderness.

Pennsylvania's Total.

HARRISON'S PLURALITY IS 59,424.

Official and semi-official returns from all of the counties of the State show a Republican plurality of 59,424, a decrease, as compared with the vote of 1888, of 20,034. The total number of ballots cast in 1888 for the Republican and Democratic candidates, was 972,724, and counting the Prohibition and Labor vote the aggregate was 997,544. The total Republican and Democratic return, according to the Associated Press table given below, was 964,514. The Prohibition vote for Bidwell was 11,105, and the Socialist-Labor vote for Weaver was 3,116, as far as the returns go. This gives a grand total vote of 988,735 in Pennsylvania, a decrease of 8,808 on the vote of four years ago.

In some counties the process of counting the ballots has been very slow and the official figures, when obtained, are likely to show slight changes in the vote.

The Weaver vote was very light, and the Socialist-Labor vote seems to have been polled in only a few localities, and will amount to only a few hundreds throught the State.

The Judge of the Supreme Court, John Dean, Republican, received 508,494 votes, and Christopher Heydrick, Democrat, received 449,027. Dean's plurality is 59,467.

The United States Senate.

There is no doubt that the administration of President Cleveland will be supported by a Senate having a Democratic majority. According to the latest returns the Republicans have lost the Legislatures in California, Connecticut, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New York and Wisconsin. The present Senate stands 47 Republicans, 39 Democrats and 2 People's party, a Republican majority of six. The Senate after March 4, 1893, will be divided as follows:

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. C. A. Kleim Druggist.

Harrison's Administration Can No Longer Conceal Its Extravagance.

The House Committee on Appropriations will be called to meet Monday, Nov. 28, to prepare some of the regular annual appropriation bills for the action of Congress when it meets for the second session. The Treasury Department has promised to submit estimates for the District, Pension and Fortification bills.

For the first four months of the year the Treasury payments have exceeded by $16,000,000 the expenditures for the corresponding period in the preceding fiscal year, which means a total increase for the present year of $48,000,000, while the appropriations for the year are only $12,000,000 greater than the appropriations for the last year. In plain English that means (if the estimates of the committee hold good) a deficiency on account of pensions of $39,000,000, which will have to be met by Congress at the next session, in addition to an appropriation for pensions for the next fiscal year of certainly not less than $150,000,000. The total appropriation that Congress must make for pensions next session will aggregate not less than $186,000,000.

With this enormous sum added to the other appropriations necessary to carry on the Government, and in view of decreased importations expected to result from the agitation of the tariff question, the Appropriations Committee has good reason to feel dismayed at the outlook.

Complexion of the House.

In the House the Democratic majority of 146 is cut down to 95, a majority such as the Democrats never had in a Presidential year. The Democrats thought it would not exceed 25 or 30, while the Republicans hoped and claimed the entire majority would be wiped out. The present House stands: 234 Democrats, 89 Republicans and 9 Farmer's Alliance. The next House, of which the membership has been raised to 356 by the new apportionment, will stand: 225 Democrats, 125 Republicans, 6 Populists, giving the Democrats a majority of 95 over all.

No political party in this country, except the Democratic party, founded as it is on the basic principles of the American republic, has ever survived a landslide like that of last week when it was on the underside of the slide. The Democrats suffered the defeat of 1840, but twelve years later they crushed their adversaries, Scott and the Whig party, beneath a defeat that left the old party of Clay and protection not a leg to stand on and within eight years it ceased to exist. The Republican party is now thirty-six years old. It outlived its usefulness soon after the war, but the possession and use of the Federal machinery and the vivid memory of the issues of the war, of which it got the usufruct sufficient to keep it in power until its aims and objects changed, and an unholy alliance with tariff monopoly, disgusted many of its most distinguished members until they deserted it in this campaign as the rats desert a sinking ship, while the people in their wrath rose up and administered to it the most sweeping and far-reaching defeat in the history of American politics.

"It's Our Family Doctor Now."

"The Friend and Blessing the Poor Sufferer Needs."

Mr. Cook found health, happiness and economy in the use of a simple remedy.

"I suffered for years with DYSPEPSIA and LIVER COMPLAINT, and was nearly a cripple with a sore leg, writes Mr. James Cook, of Catskill, New York, and after spending $475 with doctors I found myself no better. I then determined to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y., and after using three bottles which cost me just $3 I was entirely cured."

Such words from a gentleman of Mr. Cooks standing, should receive great attention from those in need of a medicine that cures disease.

We guarantee Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy to absolutely cure Kidney and Liver complaints, Gravel, Stone in the Bladder, Bright's Disease, all urinary troubles, Diabetes, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Rheumatism, Skin Eruptions, Scrofula, Humors, Ulcers, Sores and Pimples, Disorded Stomach, Sick Headache, Biliousness and Purify the Blood, It Permanently Cures All Female Weaknesses.

We could name scores of people here, and elsewhere, who have felt not actually sick, but weak, worn and weary, but who are now strong and well, solely by the use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It's a food for the brain, nerve and muscle, thereby curing sleeplessness, headache, and all nervous troubles.

Mr. Peter Lawler, chief engineer of Messrs. Crane & Co's Paper Mill, Dalton, Mass., said:

Mr. Peter Lawler.

"I don't look much like a dead man, but I was pretty near one. For fifteen years I suffered pains in my side, my urine was subject to violent stoppages, and often tinged with blood. I lost flesh, appetite, and strength. I consulted several physicians who said I was suffering from gravel and inflamation of the kidneys and that I could live but a short time. Mr. John Spencer of Pittsfield, learning of my condition, said "don't bother with the doctors, take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and be cured." I at once sent for the same, and had taken only part of the bottle, when two pieces of stone passed my bladder, and now am entirely well. Costiveness and rheumetism trouble me no more, and I feel like a new man. Thanks entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy,

Mr. E. D. Parsons, head book-keeper Wholesale Dry Goods House of S. J. Arnold & Co., Rochester, N. Y., had a similar experience. Seized one day with pain in his back, next came stoppage of urine. Medical advise was sought, and pronounced it stone in the bladder. In writing to a friend he says:

Mr. E. D. Parsons.

"I suffered beyond words to describe. None of the means taken produced any benefit, until I began the use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy which dissolved the stone, the symptoms began to yield, the pain ceased and from this time my recovery was complete. Can I after this experience speak too highly of that which saved my life?"

"I can speak in higher praise than I have written," are the words of every person I talked with, which proves the great popularity of this remedy, possessing what no other medicine has, the power to save life. It can be used with safety by all ages.

The worst cases of nervous prostration, sleeplessness, headaches and digestive troubles, yield to its curative power. Salt rheum, eczema, rheumatism, scrofula, or any disease arising from impure blood, are banished by this brain, nerve and blood tonic, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Bullheads or catfish are being caught by the hundreds in the Wapwallopen creek, near the Crystal Spring reservoir. A Great Medicine Institution.

One of our reporters in passing the establishment of Dr. Kilmer & Co., the other day noticed that they are building another five story addition to their present quarters. The growth of this concern is truly remarkable. Established a dozen years ago, they have now as large, if not the largest and most complete plant of its kind. Although working all departments night and day they seem to be unable to supply the demand for Swamp Koot, which by the way has reached the largest sale of any kidney remedy on the market. It is a pleasure to refer to such facts in our columns.—Binghamton Daily Herald.

Reading Railroad's Winter Time Table.

Twice each year the train service of the Reading Railroad's various lines is readjusted to meet the exigencies of the seasons and the ever increasing demands of travel. Each successive change of this sort is marked by greater or less improvement in the convenience afforded the public, both in the arrangement of the trains and in the quickening of their transit. The Autumn and winter time table on the Reading's lines goes into effect on Sunday 13th. inst. There are no conspicuous changes to be noted, but the slight alterations are all in the direction of furnishing better service to the Reading patrons. The new time tables can be obtained at the ticket offices on and after the 12th inst.

ELECTION ECHOES.

The entire Democratic ticket was elected in Sullivan county. M. J. Lull goes to the Legislature.

In Wyoming county the Republicans got everything except Representative. Frank Piatt, democrat, was elected by a good majority.

In Montour county everything is democratic, as usual. For Congress S P. Wolverton runs ahead of the ticket 127, and J. K. Geringer for Representative leads it 65. James C. Heddens was elected county treasurer.

In a total vote of 30,118 Hines carries the Luzerne district for Congress over Foster by 1,594 majority.

Of the twenty-five State Senators chosen, the Democrats get one—Senator Green, of Berks, whose majority of 7,900 could not be overcome.

Harrison's plurality in Pennsylvania is 59,467 against 79,458 four years ago, an apparent Republican loss of 19,991. His actual majority is 45,203 in a total vote of 983,735, according to a semi-official count.

The political complexion of the next State Legislature is not altered by later returns. With a majority of 16 in the Senate and 68 in the House the Republicans have 84 majority on joint ballot.

Kline, Republican, defeated Wright, Democrat, for State Senator in Luzerne by a plurality of 67.

Joseph Scranton was elected to congress in Lackawanna by a small majority.

Judge Pershing was elected the third time in Schuylkill county. There was a republican candidate, and John W. Ryon was an independent democrat after failing to secure the party nomination. The people of Schuylkill as well as the whole state have reason to congratulate themselves over the continuance in office of so able and upright a jurist.

Elect by Popular Vote.

Every four years, immediately following the election of a president, the subject of amending the Constitution, so that the people can vote direct for president, is discussed. Now, that the democratic party will control both the Senate and Congress, together with the executive, this reform ought to be enacted. It will require two-thirds of both houses to pass an amendment Act., and that must again be ratified by the legislatures of two-thirds of the states. It ought not be difficult to pass such an amendment, when the subject is properly understood. Some of the so called debatable states might object, because it would deprive them of monopolizing the nomination. New York state has been favored for the last 32 years; Indiana for 16 years; two presidents were chosen from Ohio; but the rest of the states have had a hard struggle even to present a candidate. By the present system, money is gathered from all corners and poured into the doubtful or wavering states, and what ought to be a gift of the people becomes a purchaseable object. The result would probably be the same. The advantage would be that each state could present the noblest son at the nominating Conventions, and the selection made with due regard for ability, rather than residence. Each state would make an effort to get out the entire vote; and the necessary money for campaign expenses, would be kept in the several states.

There are exceptions to the rule of selection, and notably so this year. Grover Cleveland would have been one of the standard bearers, even though his residence had been in the smallest State of the Union. His nomination was a demand of the people and his overwhelming majority the voice of the common people. with Cleveland in the presidential chair, would be the most opportune time to make an amendment to the Constitution, that we may blot out forever the suspicion of the presidential office being a purchasable object. In the State of Pennsylvania alone probable 100,000 voters did not go to the polls. It was a foregone conclusion which candidate could get the electoral vote and no contest was made.

A Million Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. COMPARATIVE VOTE.

Below we give the vote of Cleveland and Harrison for 1888 and 1892, showing the gains and losses in the different townships of Columbia County. Berwick shows the largest democratic gain, and yet polled the smallest proportion of its vote. Mt. Pleasant township polled the largest proportion of votes, being 29 in excess of the registration. Bloomsburg stands second in gain of democratic majority.

RARE GEMS IN BOOKS.

LITERARY TREASURES IN THE ASTOR LIBRARY IN NEW YORK.

Volumes That Are Storehouses of Scholarship and Are Worth Small Fortunes. Ancient Illustrations in Priceless Manuscripts.

Even many otherwise well informed people are not aware that the public libraries of this city contain some of the choicest literary gems extant—books for which wealthy bibliophiles have offered fabulous sums. If New York is not the literary center of America, then books immense in number, rare in antiquity and almost priceless in value are not factors in the competition.

There are thirty-four public libraries in New York, and the number and value of the volumes within their walls have grown so rapidly that Paris, Munich and even London will be surpassed in their library collections if the present growth continues.

The day when the citizen of New Amsterdam was content to sit outside his door, drink beer, smoke, grow fat and die in the firm belief that he had enjoyed life, has given way to an entirely different state of affairs.

Twenty-five years ago one public library collection was considered sufficient to meet the demands of every class, calling or profession. Today nine institutions can be picked out, each one of which is patronized by a single class.

The Astor is the richest of all our libraries. One million dollars' worth of books repose upon its shelves, but not without frequent disturbance. From fifty to 100 studious men and women are delving into the enchanting mysteries of some favorite theme every day that the reading rooms are open to the public.

The library contains nearly $200,000 worth of rare books and manuscripts, which are seldom allowed to go into the hands of the public. Perhaps the largest and finest single volume in New York may be found there. If any one thinks that the contemporaries of Shakespeare and Milton would marvel at the superb product of modern illustrators he is very much mistaken. Nothing has been produced in the last century that can equal, much less rival, the illustrations in a Seventeenth century manuscript entitled "Antiphonale." It contains 228 pages of vellum, adorned by 272 small and 53 large miniatures in the highest style of the French art of that day. Some of its illustrations have been attributed to Le Brun, the great painter of the time of Louis XIV. The larger paintings for the most part are scenes from the Scriptures appropriate to the various church festivals, and many of the initial letters which accompany the stanzas are illumined in a style wholly unknown at the present day. This volume, bound in purple morocco, with gilt mountings and ornamented with the flower-de-luce, was designed for the coronation of Charles V. At a public sale it would easily command several thousand dollars.

Another valuable work is Sylvester's "Universal Paleography," in two volumes, containing upward of 300 finely executed facsimiles of mediæval works of art. This sumptuous work is said to have cost the sum of £20,000 for its execution alone. Among other rarities is a copy of the first letter written by Christopher Columbus after he discovered America. There are only six copies of these in existence. The letter consists of only four leaves, but at a London auction sale in 1872 it brought $700.

Another rare volume to be found only in this library is Lloyd's "History of Columbia, Now Called Wales," published in 1654. It contains the legendary narrative of the expedition of Prince Modoc and a Welsh company that voyaged to America prior to Columbus, but never returned. Many foreigners have sent to this country for abstracts from this rare volume.

The earliest known editions of Ptolemy's geography repose on the shelves of the Astor. The dates on their title pages range from 1478 to 1621. There is also a superb specimen of the "Biblia Sacra Latina" of 1462, the first edition of the Bible bound in old crimson morocco, with gilt edges, which is worth $10,000. Inside the covers are the names of those "immortal printers," Johann Faust and Peter Schaffer. The oldest polyglot edition of the Scriptures, executed at the order of Cardinal Ximenes, which cost 50,000 ducats in gold and fifteen years for its preparation, is also at the Astor. The oldest manuscript of all is the "Lectiones Evangeliis," printed on vellum and containing whole pages of illuminations. This manuscript was executed by the monks in A. D. 1470, and is almost priceless in value. No other library in America possesses such a treasure. Next in point of antiquity is John Wycliff's English version of the New Testament, written in 1390, and containing the autobiography of Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester. There are also two rich Persian manuscripts of the Fifteenth century, besides manuscripts of more recent date.

Several competent Egyptologists, among whom was the late Miss Amelia B. Edwards, have inspected the collection during their visit to this city, have pronounced the library especially rich in [illegible] works. The great work of James Audubon on the "Birds of America," consisting of four volumes, would [illegible] bring $5,000. Eliot's Indian Bible, dated 1661, the first Bible printed in America; the Geneva, or the Breeches Bible of 1560; a copy of the papal bull against Luther, 1520; rare Siamese manuscripts, and the valuable and interesting collection of autograph letters from emperors, poets, statesmen, presidents, soldiers and authors are included in this collection.—New York Herald.

A Sunday Suit.

Mr. Constant Squabbler—What kind of a suit do you think I had better get for Sundays?

Mrs. C. S.—Well, if you want one to match your usual Sunday disposition, you had better get a pepper and salt suit.—Exchange.

A Momentary Delay.

At first blush it would seem to be an impossible feat for a pedestrian—a poor, defenceless woman, at that—to successfully bar three entrances to the Brooklyn bridge. It took place on the Brooklyn side one morning last week, when the wage workers were hurrying to the metropolis, and a large assembly was kept in a state of suspense for minutes that seemed ages.

To explain the feat accomplished, you remember how the entrances are arranged—a ticket office on either side, between them two iron parallel bars to guide you through. Between these railings is a space through which you pass on to the "chopping boxes," where tickets are deposited, but if you have to purchase them you pass between a rail and the box.

She was a gray haired old lady and she wished to buy a ticket. There would have been less difficulty had it not been for the umbrella. It was thrust under the old lady's arm as a man poses his umbrella when going up the "L" stairs—point to the rear and breast high.

The old lady stepped into the middle space, and while the umbrella swung round like a tollgate bar, closing the space behind her, she reached over to the ticket office and calmly proceeded to open her purse, fumble a roll of bills, finally select one, and with both arms stop the passing of pedestrians until a disgusted lot of humanity was dammed.

With the umbrella posed like an infantryman's bayonet fixed to repel cavalry the old lady and her gray hairs held the fort. At last her pennies and tickets had been picked up one by one. She gave way and the crowd surged around her like the floodtide around a shad pole in the North river.—New York Herald.

The Great Rule of Life.

We have to be governed very largely by the analogies of nature whenever we venture into the realm of the possibilities and the unknown, and there is no analogy in nature of something being given for nothing. The seed has to push through the ground to find the sun; the tree has to draw its sap up from unseen sources to whirl forth its buds; the bud itself has to force its way through obstacles of bark and fiber; the bird has to build its nest with careful endeavor and many journeys ere it feels the little wings beneath its breast; the gold has to be mined, the precious stone dug from the matrix; the diamond has to undergo fierce processes of grinding and scouring before its facets shine like living light.

Struggle is the rule of life. Were it otherwise it would seem as though we might all of us have been put upon the planet in conditions of luxury and ease and eminence that would require no effort on our part, and leave us free for all the enjoyment the world affords. But what soft, untempered, worthless metal we should be in such case! It is the fire that tempers the steel; it is the hammer that welds it; the grinding, whirling stone that brings it to an edge. —Harper's Bazar.

A Poor Folk's Garden.

So early were collectors in California, and so universal was the interest felt in Europe over the new plants of the Pacific coast, that many trees of sequoias and other superb conifers were planted in the parks of England, France and Italy long before the discovery of gold. Wealthy Californians, as early as 1855, visiting Europe, were surprised to find how popular were the brilliant annuals, flowering shrubs, vines and trees of their own state. Returning they often urged neighbors to cultivate more of the native plants, but with little effect.

In Alameda county, a plain, uneducated Englishwoman of Lancashire yeoman stock was one of the first persons in all California to make a home garden of wild flowers from field and hill. I remember in my boyhood the passionate devotion that she showed to this pursuit.

"It do be the best land the sun ever shone on," she declared, "for poor folk to have a garden.—Charles H. Shinn in Century.

The Juice of the Papaw Tree.

In his "History of Barbados" Griffith Hughes mentions that the juice of the papaw tree is of so penetrating a nature that, if the unripe peeled fruit be boiled with the toughest old salted meat, it quickly makes it soft and tender. Kersten also tells us that boiling meat with the juice of the papaw is quite a common thing in Quito.

Captain S. P. Oliver, writing in Nature, July 10, 1879, says, "In Mauritius, where we lived principally on ration beef cut from the tough flesh of the Malagasy oxen, we were in the habit of hanging the ration under the leaves themselves, and if we were in a hurry for a very tender piece of fillet, our cook would wrap up the undercut of the sirloin in the leaves, when the newly killed meat would be as tender as if it had been hung for a considerable time." —Chambers' Journal.

A Baronet as a Constable.

Among the constables in the Royal Irish constabulary stationed at the depot in the Phœnix park, Dublin, is Constable Sir Thomas Echlin, Bart. According to Debrett's baronetage the Echlin family is of ancient Scotch origin, and formerly possessed princely estates in Scotland, and also large domains in the counties of Kildare, Carlow, Dublin and Mayo. The third baronet dissipated a large portion of the family estates, and the fourth, fifth and sixth baronets managed to get through with the remainder. Then the present baronet found himself landless and entered the Royal Irish constabulary.—Yankee Blade.

The Giant's Organ.

One of the most interesting features of the Giant's causeway is "The Giant's Organ." This huge "instrument" consists of a group of pillars of various lengths set apart on the side of the main cliff. The larger columns being in the center and the smaller ones tapering off on either side, after the fashion of organ pipes, admirably sustain the idea which the name "Giant's organ" conveys.—St. Louis Republic.

An exchange says that coal for the taking is the go now for people living along the banks of the North Branch of the Susquehanna and even along the banks of the big river for a good distance. It is a well known fact that for years coal that has been washed down from the mines at Hazleton and some from the Wyoming region has been accumulating along the river bed for a hundred miles and more until now many people enjoy the luxury of burning free coal. The getting is all that is required. The coal taken from the river is washed smooth and round by the action of the water. It is said that very little slate is found among it, and that when used in the stove it makes an excellent fire. Some of the gatherers of this coal get it for their individual use and some get it to sell. The proprietors of Savidge's sand digger have been taking twenty tons a day from the river at Johnson's run above Northumberland by using the digger. It is said that Jere Savidge disposes of the black diamonds at the rate of two tons for five dollars while a Shamokin Dam party is said to sell it for $1.40 per ton.

Undisputed Merit.

The greatest success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by its manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care and skill, attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials used or the manufacture of the powder who is not an expert in his particular branches of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome and uniform in equality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its power and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at at any time. The Government Chemists after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking powder at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

The first pipe organ was made by Archimedes B. C. 220.

Quick and sure! One-third of a bottle cures neuralgia and backache. Mr. W. H. Gill, Byesville, Guernsey Co., O., writes: "I had a severe attack of neuralgia and pains in my back and shoulders, and after using one-third of a bottle of Salvation Oil was able to go to work.

An Irresistible Appeal.

Men and women who understand the art of bending others to their will give due importance to the passion of vanity, and do not scruple to play upon it. A young French officer who was ordered to fire upon a French revolutionary mob, begged his general to let him try first to persuade them to withdraw. "It is useless to appeal to their reason," said the general. "Certainly," answered the officer; "and it is not to their reason, but to their vanity, I would appeal." The officer rode up to the front of the mob, doffed his cocked hat, pointed to the guns and said: "Gentlemen will have the kindness to retire; for I am ordered to shoot dawn the rabble." The street was cleared at once; for none could brook the idea of being classed with the scum of the city. During the agrarian riots which disturbed England in 1832, a mob of rick-burners and machine-breakers appeared at the old mansion of two elderly maiden ladies. The walls of the hall were decorated with suits of armor and antique weapons—pikes, halberds, swords and battle axes. The mob clamored for the weapons and for drink. The ladies courageously refused their demands, and when the mob seemed ready to resort to violence, Miss Betty, the elder of the ladies, went up to the leader, a hideous-looking man, and said: "You, too, of all the people in the world! I'm not surprised at these poor misguided creatures. But that such a good looking, intelligent man as you should attack two defenceless women does astonish me! You are the man I should have looked to for protection. But you are not the man I took you for! Never again will I trust to good looks!" There was no standing up against that compliment. The man took off his hat, and said: "Come, old lady, we ain't so bad as all that! only give us some beer. We would not harm a hair of your head!" "No: I know that," retorted Miss Betty. "You can't; I wear a wig!" The mob roared with laughter, and retired without another word. Womanly tact had won the day.

A gentleman is distinguished from a churl by the purity of sentiment he can reach in all these three passions—by his imaginative love as opposed to lust; his imaginative possession of wealth as opposed to avarice; his imaginative desire of honor as opposed to pride.—Ruskin.

A Woman's Back.

It is the mainspring of her life.

She cannot walk, she cannot stand; her housework is a burden; the hours behind the counter or in the factory are crushing; she is miserable.

The cause is some derangement of the uterus or womb. The backache is the sure symptom.

Hints on Table Manners.

The Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter, of the Austin Bluelight tabernacle, gives the following advice on table etiquette:

A few remarks, ladies and gennermens, is what I wants ter make dis ebenin on de subjec' ob eatin in gineral, and also ter say sumfin about manners at de table in perticklar.

I has been readin ob late a book on de subjec' ob table etterket.

Sam Johnsing, ef yer wants ter avoid bein smashed in de mouf, you will keep it shut in dese sacred precincts. I didn't say nuffin about eatin a cat at de table. What I said was table etterket, which am a hoss ob anudder color. Use yer ears instead ob yer mouf, and you'll larn sumfin what yer don't know.

When you am seated at de table you must be like de goat, what ain't particklar about what he feeds on. When a dog growls ober his food yer knows dat he likes hit. When a lady or gennerman growls ober what dey git ter eat it's vice versy.

In de book on etterket what I am perusin hit says dat soup must not be eaten wid de fork. If yer has contracted de bad habit ob eatin soup wid a fork or a carvin knife jess drop it, bekase hit's not bongtong.

You should always hab clean finger nails at de table, bekase dar's whar dey am mos' conspicuous, but don't clean 'em wid a fork after you has done sot down.

Ef yer wants ter attend ter yer finger nails or ter pick yer teef wait ontil de repast am succumbed, and den go out behind de barn or crawl down under de table, and pick yer teef dar.

Don't stab a raw oyster wid yer fork, and holding it up ask de host ef hit's dead yit, bekase he may jab yer wid de carvin knife. Besides hit's not embonpoint in some respects.—Texas Siftings.

The Tragedy of the Barnyard.

By the right of ancient custom and the order of the president this is lamentation day—in the barnyard. Elsewhere, perhaps, it is Thanksgiving day, and the selfish world of folks, that spares from the prodigal's joy no pitying thought for the fatted calf, is going to make it a holiday. Blessed little concern is given the tremendous tragedy it brings to poultry. There is rather a glory in the slaughter, and the carnival is peculiarly one of death. "The frost is in the pumpkin and the fodder is thriftily in shock" throughout this northern farm land this morning. There is a rime upon the shingles of the barn and a white mist rises from the litter of the stable yard.

Who would mar this peaceful scene and check this flow of life and joy? The duty has its vandal candidate, and he does so in the name of Thanksgiving. Down from the wall comes the old smoothbore; down its rusty throat go the powder and the shot; down against the stock goes the farmer's cheek as he levels his eye along the barrel; down comes the hammer, and—oh, the crime of it!—down comes the gobbler in the pride of his plethoric prime. There is one wild cry and then a prodigious flutter. This is the drama of the day, and whether it be the block instead of the gunshot it is none the less tragic.—Chicago News-Record.

Thanksgiving a Patriotic Festival.

As a patriotic festival Thanksgiving does much to foster love of country and a feeling of pride in the goodly land which is our national heritage. From sea to sea, through all our borders, we are a Christian people, and we expect to receive the crowding immigrants from foreign shores and make them Christian too.

In the home happy scenes are the rule. Grandparents survey with proud complacency the features of the babies. Only a grandparent fully appreciates the rare endowments and wonderful beauty of the second generation. Children on their part find it difficult to believe that the grandparents who spoil them could ever have said "No" with the readiness and ease with which that monosyllable is uttered by father and mother. Around the table and by the hearth reminiscences are in order, and the quickly responsive laughter crowns the innocent jest.—Christian at Work.

Don't Forget the Cook.

And who thought about the cook? The cook it was who prepared the feast which tickled the cockles of your heart and made you look at all things through the roseate spectacles which are but an adjunct to a well fed stomach. Thanksgiving is a great day for the cook. She can glory over the triumph of her art. She can offer up thanks that the soup was just right, that the turkey was well cooked, that the pudding was grand, and that she, in her humble way, did much to make Thanksgiving a day for giving thanks.

Little Paul's Thanksgiving.

They tossed him and they squeezed him,
And they kissed him, one and all;
They said, "You blessed, blessed boy!"
And "Darling little Paul!"

But they didn't give him turkey,
Nor any pumpkin pie.
And when the nuts and grapes went round
They slyly passed him by.

But he didn't seem to mind it,
For in the sweetest way
He sat and sucked his little thumb,
His first Thanksgiving day.
—Emma C. Dowd in Youth's Companion.

HE LOVED good bread, pie, and pastry, but his stomach was delicate. SHE LOVED to cook, but was tired and sick of the taste and smell of lard. She bought Cottolene, (the new shortening) and THEY LOVED more than ever, because she made better food, and he could eat it without any unpleasant after effect. Now THEY ARE HAPPY in having found the BEST, and most healthful shortening ever made—

Some one has said that a bargain is an article sold under its real value. Some advertisers are not believers in this theory or are as economical of the truth as they are with their bargains.

But "an honest tale speeds best being plainly told." This is our purpose in offering Wall paper bargains. They are bargains because they are as we represent them, full length, full weight, bona-fide goods.

We know one instance of a bargain in wall paper which after it was on the walls lead pencil marks showed through. Whose was the bargain?

Come and see us before buying elsewhere.

Get Plenty of Sleep and Rise Early.

The excellence of early rising and its inspiring influences on both body and mind have been themes for the poet's song and the sage's sermon. Early rising promotes cheerfulness of temper, opens up new capacities of enjoyment and channels of delight to which the sluggard must be insensible. It increases the sum of human existence by stealing from indolence hours that would else be utterly wasted, and, better still, unquestionably conduces to longevity. All long livers have been early risers. Now the habit of retiring to bed at late hours will hardly admit of early rising; therefore the necessity of refraining from the one in order to secure the advantages of the other. From six to eight hours are generally held to be sufficient and no doubt on the average are so. Our sleep is much regulated by the season. In winter people lie longer on account, as they say, of it being too dark to get up early. There is some plausibility in the reason, but the system in cold and dark weather is more prone to sleep in light and sunny times. Invalids need generally plenty of bed rest, but they should procure it by going early to bed. There is more health and strength to be found in the practice of seeing the sun rise than in looking at it any other part of the day.—Providence Journal.

Lowest in Ninety-nine Years.

The Harrisburg Patriot says: The low water in the Susquehanna river, November, 1892, has about reached the point marked on Maclay's rock, opposite South street, by Balthazer Steesr. The mark he made in August, ninety-nine years ago, reads "1803." The figures are beautifully cut and are several inches long. The straight line below marks the lowest stage of the water of which there is any record. About forty years ago the numerals were visible above the face of the water and the mark almost so. At present the level of the water s in nearly the same condition.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.
